

Clinical Quality Officer

About The Evewell

The Evewell is a group of (currently two) independent prestigious private clinics at Harley Street and West London specialising in gynaecology and fertility treatments. Each Evewell clinic is a fully integrated centre of medical excellence dedicated to caring for and protecting all aspects of a woman's gynaecological and reproductive health.

The Evewell is committed to providing patients a high level of individualised patient care. We aim to have satisfied patients and a happy team who are fulfilled by their jobs and can truly care for their patients.

We value diversity, and you will find an inclusive environment where everyone is driven by the same values and purpose.

Clinical Quality Officer

Role overview

The Clinical Quality Officer is a new role vital to the clinical governance and risk management of the clinical services at the Evewell Group. The Clinical Quality Officer will be a member of the Quality department. The role is to provide an independent and impartial quality oversight of the Evewell Nursing and Consultant departments. The successful candidate will support the Quality, Nursing and Consultant departments in ensuring the clinical services are meeting HFEA Code of Practice, CQC regulations and all relevant clinical directives.

The successful candidate will be a qualified nurse or midwife with extensive fertility experience. You will support the Quality department in oversight of the QMS system, for monitoring and developing this in line with regulatory compliance. You will be involved in training of clinical staff in QMS tasks including investigations, internal audits, document control and management of non-conformances.

You will play a core role in Multi-Disciplinary Meetings management and carrying out Controlled Drugs audits at the clinics.

In addition, a core objective of the Quality department in 2026 is data improvement. Collating, cleaning, analysing and presenting data regularly from our internal systems for reports which will include, but not be limited to, updates on key quality performance indicators, risk assessment and individual practitioner performance. You will be responsible for presenting these reports to core meetings across the clinics, as part of individual performance review and reflection and/or for marketing purposes.

The Clinical Quality Officer will be a confident individual who is well versed in managing challenging situations and/or conversations across multidisciplinary teams. They must have a keen eye for detail, be adaptable, be able to work closely with their multidisciplinary team, possess excellent communication skills and have an appetite for quality improvement. The individual must be dynamic, using initiative and considering all elements of the IVF pathway to identify areas of development and problem solve within the scope of professional practice to improve quality and optimise outcomes.

Overall, the Clinical Quality Officer will work alongside the quality team and their objectives. The role is responsible for the development, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of clinical processes, clinical data, clinical personnel, the clinical services as part of the multidisciplinary team and patient care. The Clinical Quality Officer will work
